“Honey-Do-List”

Jeannette Bigelow, Woodside Village 1

When my son Brad visited me from off-Island in August, he automatically picked up my “honey-do-list” and proceeded to fix those annoying little jobs that we all seem to accumulate. As he fixed the toaster, my bedside lamp, etc. I felt the glow that my mom used to show all those years when I visited her in Taunton, MA. She too would have her “honey-do-list” each time I would spend a few days with her.

I never realized then how much it meant to her until I became the one on the receiving end. And it was only fair that I did the chores she could no longer do. After all, she was the one who taught me to climb on the roof to clean the gutters and repair the leak around the vent. I have her to thank for teaching me to paint our houses and to wallpaper. And in turn she had learned those things from her father who had taught his four sons and four daughters those talents telling them that they would be able to care for their own houses. I am sure that Pepere Perra never dreamed of those talents being passed down to his great-great grandson.

Only one of my children was cheated of that particular gene. All of his interests lie in computers and I never let him near a hammer or paint brush. Instead I was the one who did his chores. But I got the better of that bargain. Instead of chores, I got from him a lifetime of laughs, of the most outrageous kind. Of all the people that I have met in my life, he has brought me the most laughter.

You will never know how important laughter is until there is none — only the empty, hollow place is left where it once was.

But when someone laughs with you it makes the whole atmosphere shine with a special glow, a warmth that is indescribable.

So thank you, my kids, for your individual talents. You certainly have kept life interesting.
